A Show That's Engineered For Laughs!

Paul Isaak's unbridled enthusiasm is infectious. As his high-energy show takes to the stage, the audience can't help being drawn into the performance. They find themselves laughing, yelling, cheering, Ohhing & Ahhing, as they become lost in the moment.

What does Paul Isaak do? He juggles better than Al Gore, is a better parent than Britney Spears, and is a better public speaker than Marcel Marceau. He's not a stand up comic, but he is hysterically funny. He isn't a flashy Las Vegas Style juggler, but he will amaze the crowd with his skill. Whatever he's doing, Paul makes the audience a part of it.

From the ground up, The Comedy & Juggling of Paul Isaak has been designed to bring laughs to any crowd. Starting with building an audience and the pre-show warm up, right to the Grande Finale, Isaak has constructed his show around audience participation. Every member of the crowd becomes a part of the act.

When he mounts his six-foot unicycle, everything goes wrong, but an audience member saves the day! He challenges two brave men from the crowd to bind him for the most ridiculous escape possible - a cocoon of Saran Wrap.

Throughout this comedy of errors, the audience can never be sure if it's part of the show, or if things have truly gone awry.

Isaak's repertoire of wild stunts, intertwined with clean comedy, will elicit chuckles out of even the toughest crowds. He flirts with danger when he shaves with a machete while he's juggling it. He plays with fire as he tosses lit torches under his legs, and into his mouth.

Although Isaak has a box filled with shiny juggling toys, playing to the audience is the trademark of his show. He's mastered the art of working with each audience to bring out the funny side of individuals in the crowd, turning the audience into the stars of the show.

“Audiences were captivated by your show, and many guests requested bringing you back next year.”
